RELIGIONS WERE LECTURE TOPIC

DR. BEATON SPOKE ON "SOME THING GOOD IN EVERY RELIGION."

DIVISION OF CHURCHES

Deplored by Speaker, Who Said Protestant Church Should Be Large Enough To Admit All Sects.

Some strong and perhaps startling statements were made by Dr. David Beaton in his lecture at the Congregational church last evening. His remarks were delivered straight from the shoulder and his talk was very interesting. The lecture was one of a series being given by the pastor, the subject last evening being "Something Good in Every Religion."

The lecture in brief was as follows: "Something good in every religion. It is a common-sense thing to say. I am not going to speak from the point of view, but from the more familiar and practical side.

"Passing for a moment and ask yourselves what is the purpose of any religion. The purpose of religion is to bring men to God and to each other. If we consider carefully the facts of the history of the world, I fear we would have to admit that religion instead of being a binding force has been a dividing factor. Religion ought to be a binding and uniting power in human life.

"Why has religion, that should be the exponent of neighborliness, kindness, and love for each other, become so divided? I was out in Dakota that I had to move in a small circle of Congregationalists and in Chicago it was much the same way. Once or twice I had the privilege of meeting others of other churches. One of these occasions was with an Episcopalian bishop and a Unitarian, a business man of Chicago. We met and organized what is now the greatest charitable organization in Chicago. I realized very strikingly that we all had the same general ideas about life, about religion and the spiritual life of a man. I thought about it there because I protested against such a condition of affairs. I said, 'I don't want to always move in circles with the Congregationalists.'

"One of the first things I said when I said when I came to Chicago was that American life was becoming narrow and provincial because they were not having interests. One intelligent I said to that is against the tendency to create parochial schools, favoring them instead of the public schools, because the boys and girls who attend the parochial schools are taught that they are members of a religious body and not American citizens. That perpetuates one of the old vices of narrow religion. Why is it difficult to convert a Chinaman. Because he worships a King of Heaven and the idea prevails that if he ceases his Confucianism, he loses his patriotism. That idea was handed down into Christianity and there was accompanying it the idea that anyone who did not worship the established religion of the state were traitors.

"Need I say that the teaching of Jesus Christ was to teach men to love one another instead of being divided. When Christianity spread over the world, it met with the idea that the religion of the country was its patriotism. That conception once had a good side. It was the way men were taught patriotism.

"In the Christianizing of the world, one thing that met and hindered the movement was the advancing tide of Islam, and what was Islam?—a religion of conquest. Where a great factor like that comes into the people's blood it changes the people's character.

"We must not however suppose that this was all wrong. A large part of it was splendidly right. You and I enjoy our Christian liberty because Charles Martel believed in it and was faithful to his great trust, defending Christianity against the advance of the Turk. The great impulse which led Columbus to America was largely born of this spirit.

"Protestantism is the greatest religion in the world. Protestantism is the advancing religion. Protestantism is in possession of the future of religion. In the present day the division of the Protestants is one of the great problems of religion.

"Why are the Protestants divided into sects? Protestantism is the revolt against uniformity of thought. When the Renaissance appeared and the intelligence of man was emancipated from that uniformity, then a new thing appeared and that was the individuality of man. Men began to have opinions of their own and those individual men asserted their opinions. It was these assertions of the individuality of man that caused the sects. Differences of opinion should never have knocked the Protestant church to pieces. She should have been large enough to hold them all. There is where the Roman Catholic church has proven its diplomacy in holding together when there was internal dissension.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Helena Lindes passed away Sunday morning at one o'clock at the home of her son, John A. Lindes in the town of Rock. The deceased was eighty-eight years of age and had been ill for the past ten days. Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 9:30 from St. Mary's church.

Died in Australian Bush.

The perils of the bush are very real yet in Australia. After 13 days' search the body of five-year-old Edith Byrne, who wandered away from her home in the Doering district, was found beside a salt lake four miles from her home.

FOUND AN EDGERTON MAN DEAD IN BARN

Karl Bartz, Retired Farmer, Mentally Unbalanced For Some Time, Took Paris Green.

Edgerton, Wis., May 9.—Karl Bartz, a German and a resident of Edgerton for nearly 40 years, was found dead Sunday morning on the second floor of his barn about 8:30 o'clock as a result of a dose of Paris green he had taken about two hours before. Saturday night he was at his usual place of abode and was seen Sunday morning on the streets about 6 o'clock. Not returning for breakfast Albert, the youngest son, went to the barn and discovered the dead body. Dr. Clouty was called who traced the cause of his death as stated. He has been mentally unbalanced for some time and whether or not it is a plain case of suicide will never be known. He was a man of wealth. Coming here nearly 40 years ago he engaged in farming close to the city limits, an occupation which he continued until seven years ago, when he removed with his family to this city. Six years ago his wife passed away. He was then 73 years of age. He leaves a family of four children: two sons, Charles and Albert, and two daughters, Mrs. William Schupp and Mrs. August Summerfeldt, the latter residing in the town of Harmony. Rock county. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at the German Lutheran church.

APPRENTICE HAS A HARD ROW TO HOE

Anyone Desiring to Learn Machinist's Trade Must Be Made of Tough Material.

Allowing for a slight exaggeration, for the hard work incident to more common labor, and an office man draw the appended illustration, it can be seen that the life of the machinist's apprentice is not a long, lovely dream. For example, notice the work that the apprentice in the picture is forced to perform. The most of the unskilled, and truck wheels would seem almost impossible, but give a hasty young fellow the advantage of a couple of weeks' training on hard oil and under such capable instructors as may be found among the machinists in any house, and he would be willing to attempt lifting a big "Zulu" if ordered to do so.

Developing His Muscle.

"Doing around" for four years and juggling such small articles as twenty-pound wheels, drive wheels and locomotive tires is not considered too hard work when the apprentice position which the apprentice achieves at the end of his sentence is taken into consideration. A real "nut-splitter" must be able to do these things, and then some.

To substantiate the claim that the illustration is not exaggerated in the least, it may be stated that the original, which may be seen on application, was drawn from real life by that eminent artist, J. T. Mason, who went to great pains in order to make the lines exact. In fact, after the first had been drawn, he was forced to do it all over again in order to put the flanges on the wheels on the outside. But then, a storekeeper is not supposed to know everything, like a call boy.

The artist has been urged to say, "You don't get it for a trolley car after you catch it." It is not probable that his art will be cultivated, or even placed.

As has been stated, the picture shows an actual feat performed in the round house last week by an apprentice, and is typical of the work the apprentices are called on to perform. The artist says it was one with golden locks, but there are two such. An exhaustive inquiry failed to disclose the identity of the model before a doubt but the general impression seems to be that it was Earl Garbutt. It, however, is not a speaking likeness, nor can it be said that it flatters him. The model, perhaps, will forgive the faulty drawing, and sacrifice his appearance in a praise-worthy attempt to present the troubles of an apprentice to a doubting world.

Badly Injured. William Walsh, a machinist, was badly injured this afternoon when a drive wheel tire fell on his hip.

Engineer J. H. Kauffman and Fireman Urban came up from Chicago last night at 10 o'clock with engine 307 from the shops, which was turned over to the Northern Wisconsin division for service.

Engineer Wilson relieved Charles Yates on the switch engine last night.

Arthur Lucht, former fireman on the St. Paul, has been added to the round house force as machinist's apprentice.

John Aldrich has given up his place as engineer at the coal shed and has resumed work as machinist's apprentice at the house.

Foreman Tom Boardman has a force of men at work on the coal shed today repairing damages to the timbers which were caused by an accident yesterday.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Engineer McCarthy and Fireman Kellaher went east on an extra at 3:30 this morning with engine 1749.

Engine 560 has been placed on 7 and 8 in place of 569 which has been sent to the shops for repairs.

Engineer Scheller and Fireman Kilgely took an extra east this morning at 2 o'clock with engine 1752.

Foreman G. K. Hennessy returned today after spending Saturday and Sunday at Green Bay.

Foreman Vobian relieved Green on the switch engine Saturday night with Engineer Wobler.

The One That Suffered.

A colored blacksmith in Georgia was recently engaged in shoeing a mule when the mule switched around suddenly and kicked him on the head. A few days afterwards some one asked the mule's owner if the blacksmith was much hurt. "I don't know anything about the blacksmith," he said, sourly, "but I know one thing. I've got a fool mule that's going around on three legs."

Miss Acta Lott—How do you know? Office Boy—I saw the statement of last week's business.

Not "Snake Holes."

The holes commonly seen in the fields are not "snake holes," though commonly called such. They are made by field mice, shrews and moles, often by the larger insects, and it is very seldom that snakes even take refuge in them. Few snakes actually dig holes. They burrow in soft ground—the subterraneous species; but these live, as a rule, in soft, yielding soil—St. Nicholas.

When Fish Was a Luxury.

Men of former ages, unless they lived near the sea or a river, had great difficulty in gratifying their taste for fish. The great houses had their fish ponds or stews, but sea fish, such as cod, bream, sturgeon, herring and sprats, were salted, and the excessive consumption of highly salted fish in the middle ages is said to have produced leprosy. Fish was also lured in place to enable it to be carried for great distances.

"Working" His Way.

"The impression that Harvard is a rich man's college is quite erroneous. Statistics show that between one-quarter and one-third of the Harvard students are self-supporting." Yes, indeed, a Harvard sophomore of our acquaintance says he can count on about $125 a month from poker and about $40 from casino.—New York Mail.

Mouse in Loaf of Bread.

A strange little incident occurred in a Perthshire (Scotland) town the other day. A housewife, when cutting bread for dinner, was astounded to find a mouse embedded in the heart of the loaf. It is conjectured that the rodent had somehow got among the dough after it had been set, and, not being observed thereafter, had passed on in the loaf to the oven.

Increase of Insane Britons.

About 60 years ago one out of every 536 of the population of Great Britain was insane; now the proportion is one out of 285, the increase being most marked in the last few years.—London Good Health Magazine.

Why do you smile?"

Said the sack of Marvel Flour: "I am pure according to the ruling of the U. S. Gov't Pure Food Commission, because I am unbleached and milled in the natural way only from the best wheat that grows."

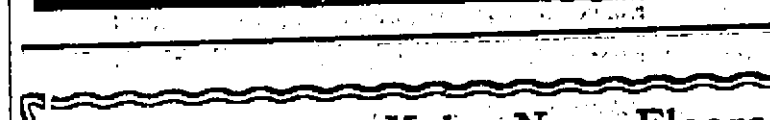

Said the Loaf of Bread: "No wonder you smile. Why, you stand alone as the one flour, made by one of the large mills, that's never been bleached and always been pure."

Insist on MARVEL FLOUR. It will bake better and more bread, cake and pastry at less cost than bleached flour and is pure, healthful and nourishing.

And if you use MARVEL FLOUR, you can get the Marvel Bread Kneader free. The leaflet in every sack tells all about our offer.

Physician's Maladies.

A French newspaper publishes some statistics showing the causes of death in the medical profession. The figures are impressive, but there is no indication as to the source of the information. We read that 41 per cent. die of heart disease, 20 per cent. from nervous affections, 20 per cent. from the morphia habit, and 7 per cent. from tuberculosis. The prevalence of morphia is ascribed to the fact that a doctor knows when his malady is incurable, and morphia is sought to soothe the mind.

OCTAGENARIANS AT BANQUET IN MONROE

William Johnson Entertained at Dinner in Restaurant in Honor of His Birthday.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Monroe, Wis., May 9.—A company of men, whose ages added together amounted to 820, gathered around the festive board at the Pfeiffer restaurant, at the invitation of Wm. Johnson, who had invited his comrades there to help celebrate his 85th birthday anniversary. The guests numbered ten and their ages ranged all the way from 81 years to 89 years. A splendid dinner was served and the old friends of former years had an enjoyable time talking over the things that happened away back in their youth. It was also the 85th anniversary of the birth of one of the guests, Martin Goggin, Sr. Mr. Goggin is a native of Switzerland and has been a resident of this country since 1854. He bears the distinction of having voted for every republican president since the presidency of James Buchanan, and was also one of the builders of the capitol at Madison.

Leg Injured.
John C. Elmer, of the wholesale cheese firm of J. H. Elmer & Son, the owner of a new Indian motorcycle, is laid up at home from the result of an injury which happened to him while opening the muffler on his machine. He undertook to reach down with his foot to open the muffler when it pulled him down, so that the projection on the muffler tore an ugly wound in the cleft of his leg. It will be several days before he will be able to get around to his office.

Jacob Theller Dead.
Jacob Theller, an aged resident of this county, died at the home of his son in Washington township after an illness of three weeks' duration from lung fever. He was 81 years of age and came here from Switzerland twenty years ago. Four children survive as follows: Gottfried Theller, who lives on astronomy at the library, quite and Christ Theller, Washington township, John Theller, publisher of the Courier at New Glarus, and Mrs. Marie Durschell, of Switzerland. The funeral was held from the son's home at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and at 2 o'clock from the church in Washington.

Lecture on Astronomy.
Rev. Noel W. Roberts, of Edgerton, gave a very pleasing and instructive lecture on astronomy at the library. Following his lecture those present were invited to look through the large telescope which he carried with him, and a fine view of the heavens was viewed. Mr. Roberts also invited all present to join him at the library the next morning and view Halley's comet, and those who accepted saw the celebrated sky tramp to good advantage.

Local News.

Mrs. Jacob Lohmer is here from Manitowish, Minn., having been called by the illness of her daughter, Miss Bertha Lohmer. Mrs. Lohmer is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Blumer, Sr.

Harry W. Trout is here from Seattle, Wash., making a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Trout.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goddard have returned to Portland, Ore., after a visit here.

SMART TENNIS COSTUME.

White chamois, which promises to be quite popular this summer would be admirable material for a frock of this sort on account of its light weight. The Princess skirt has a deep, pointed hip yoke, with clusters of fine tucks at top, between which are braided designs of white soutache. Similar treatment is given the yoke of blouse, otherwise plain. The skirt has an inverted box pleat front, with three knife pleats on each side.

DEAD IN CARTAGO IS ESTIMATED AT 1,500

City Was Destroyed by Earthquake Which Lasted Less Than Four Seconds.

San Jose, Costa Rica, May 9.—The dead at Cartago number 1,500. The city was destroyed by an earthquake which lasted four seconds. It was a tremendous movement, which followed a few minor shocks.

It occurred at seven o'clock Wednesday evening. No one had time to run out of the houses.

The railroad and telegraph lines were broken and the electric light wires fell, leaving the city in darkness. Thousands ran panic-stricken in all directions in an effort to save themselves, leaving behind those under the ruins.

Every house and building was destroyed, including four churches and the palace of the American peace court, the gift of Andrew Carnegie. Some Americans are reported to have been killed.

President Cleto Gonzalez Viquez.

been killed, but identification is impossible. Many of the wounded died, suffering terribly. Entire families have been wiped out.

Rafael Angel Troya, the Costa Rican poet, is among the dead.

The college of the Silesian priests fell while the priests and children were at prayer. Two priests and ten children were killed.

No more formidable disaster has occurred in the history of Costa Rica, and perhaps in all Central America.

President Gonzalez Viquez and President-elect Ricardo Jimenez are personally in charge of the work of rescue, but there is little hope that those under the ruins can escape.

Days must elapse before the real situation can be determined. The monetary losses reach far into the millions. Foreign help is needed badly, and must be prompt if good is to come of it. Thousands are homeless and without food. Those that followed the destruction of the town added to the horror of the situation, and heavy rains that have fallen since have made the conditions almost unbearable.

GEN. NELSON H. HENRY.
Named as Surveyor of the Port of New York.

New York.—The appointment of General Nelson H. Henry, adjutant general N. G. N. Y., as surveyor of the port of New York, has met with the general approval of political factions throughout the state.

Governor Hughes and General Henry are close personal friends, and it is known that the endorsement of Governor Hughes was virtually the deciding factor in the appointment of General Henry. The latter is expected to assume his new position about June 1.

On the Track.

A Burlington passenger train coming into St. Joseph had to stop and remove a sleeping man from the track. A brakeman was left to hold the man and when the train reached the station a policeman was sent to arrest the truck sleeper. He was running down the right of way with the brakeman hanging to his coat tails with all brakes set.—Kansas City Star.

A DREAM THAT FADED

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Isn't there a romance in your life, grandma?" said a little girl to whom her grandmother had been telling stories.

"Oh, yes. There are romances in the lives of all of us."

"Let me see. I was but eighteen when my father—your great-grandfather, you know—brought a farm hand who came along just at the beginning of the harvest season. I will call him Elsha. We girls used to help get in the grain in those days, and sometimes I used to go out and help on purpose to be with Elsha. He was two years older than I, and I considered him very handsome. I was at that age when a girl's heart goes out naturally, and mine went out to Elsha."

"One evening about sunset, when we were alone together among the wheat we sat down on a pile of sheaves to talk. Elsha put his arm around me and kissed me. Then he told me he loved me, and I told him I loved him. 'I was too young—at any rate, too unsophisticated—to know the next thing to be done, which was for Elsha to go to my father and ask for me. He didn't do this, but when the first natural outpouring of love was over I asked him if I should say anything about our affair to father or mother. He told me to say nothing at present. 'I waited, no one but Elsha and I knowing what was between us, till the harvest was all in and my lover was paid off. That day he took me off where, we would be alone and said to me: 'Your father wouldn't think of giving you to me. I haven't a cent in the world. We must wait. I'll try during the next few years to get a start, then I will come back and ask for you.' 'My heart stood still. How could I wait several years for him to come back to me? Each year would seem a century. In three years I would be twenty-one, and that seemed to me then to mark a girl as an old maid. But there was nothing to be done, so I said goodby to Elsha, and he went away."

"There was a farmer near us who stood very high in the community. He was but twenty-eight years old, and yet he had been in the legislature of the state. He seemed to me to be a hundred years old. He used to come to our place and talk with father about things that I didn't understand—tariff and free trade, raising money to build railroads to take our grain to market, and all that. When we were all in the living room in the evening, and father and Mr. Baxter, I'll call him, were talking about these things and the slavery question, in the south and the troubles in Kansas I used to sit at my needlework and wonder what they meant, for I didn't understand a word of it all."

"Then one day father surprised me by telling me that Mr. Baxter had proposed for me, and father hoped I would accept him since the match would be such a good one for me. 'Isn't that a funny way to propose for a girl?' I asked. 'I supposed the lover proposed to the girl instead of her father.' 'The most honorable way is to ask permission of her father to speak to her.' 'All this was too formal, too unnatural for me. I told father that I would not have Mr. Baxter; he was altogether too old for me. And when father said he was just the right age I replied that he seemed too old anyway. 'Father was obliged to tell Mr. Baxter that I wouldn't have him, and Mr. Baxter only said that he was very sorry, but he wouldn't think of permitting the least influence to be brought to bear on me to induce me to accept him. I didn't tell any one that my heart had been given to a farm hand. Indeed, I didn't dare tell. I couldn't have braved father's anger and contempt. I ground my teeth together and resolved to wait for Elsha. I waited two years, and he didn't come. I waited two years more. Meanwhile Mr. Baxter had been away much of the time. He had been elected to congress. Then I heard father say that he was sure of the nomination for governor."

"This didn't interest me. I didn't care if he was president. What I wanted was that which would satisfy the cravings of my heart—I wanted Elsha."

"It was five years after Elsha had gone away and three after Mr. Baxter had proposed for me that I saw one morning when I was standing on the porch a man coming down the road. His clothes were city cut, though not fashionable. He stopped at the gate and asked me how far it was to Hoonston. I told him, and he said, 'You don't seem to remember me.' 'No, I don't,' I replied. 'Sorry; I thought you would.' A suspicion came to me when he said this that he was Elsha. I dreaded lest he was, for somehow I didn't like his looks. I can't tell you what there was about him I didn't fancy; it was everything. The fact is that I had been changing during these years he had been away from me and now saw him for what he was—a very commonplace man."

"Well, do you know, I turned, and went into the house. The man went on. My dream was ended. In a few weeks I was engaged to Mr. Baxter. 'But, grandma, you haven't had two husbands, have you?' 'No. I only called him Mr. Baxter. He is your grandfather.'"

A Very Smart Little Afternoon Frock.

This new princess front model for small girls is particularly graceful and has a smart trim style on the figure. The material in this instance is a linen lawn with pipings of red and white checked flannel; but the model could be developed in colored gingham or in English mohair with equal success. The photograph shows clearly how the waist is gathered and set into the panel which forms the front of the pleated skirt; this panel being merely cut at the top in a blunt point and attached over the gathered bodice, a straight belt being attached across the joining of the waist all around. The hat is one of the Gage models for children and is of very soft Panama straw in cream white with a simple trimming of satin ribbon.

Sexton's Narrow Escape.

The sexton of the Methodist church at Elkhedon, Del., had a startling experience the other Sunday morning. As he was ringing the bell for service the tower collapsed and fell through the thin flooring just as he had finished the last stroke. He managed to escape uninjured, but the bell was smashed to atoms in the crash.

Lace Curtains and Curtain Nets

We are having the largest business in lace curtains, curtain nets, serims, muslins, etc., that we have ever had. There is no question but that these results are due to the completeness of our stock and the remarkably low prices for goods of merit. We are receiving new styles and ideas every day, it being the great aim of the department to keep up to date in every particular. Thousands of pairs of Curtains, thousands of yards of Draperies and Nets. WORTHY OF PARTICULAR MENTION ARE THE FOLLOWING:

Just received 42 inch flut nets that have been regularly sold at $1.00 per yd. We shall offer them while they last at 45c yd. They come in one color only, Arabian, small all over designs.

Just received also, a new shipment of popular serims. They come 40 inches wide, are duplex, both sides being alike, at 25c yd. Made in Arts and stencil patterns and in every conceivable color.

200 Pairs Ruffled Muslin Curtains at 39c

Just placed on sale 200 pairs of ruffled muslin curtains, full 36 inches wide, 2 1/2 yds. long, 5 rows of tucks, exceedingly well made, each seam being taped and double-stitched. They are usually sold at 65c pair. Our price only 39c pair.

NEW ETAMINE CURTAINS

We are showing a beautiful assortment of the new Etamine Curtains. These handsome serim curtains are very popular, are made in a variety of pretty styles, some with hemstitched hems, others with cluny insertion and edges, flut lace insertion, etc. We mention two particular styles:

One 36 inches wide, 2 1/2 yds. long with real English Cluny edge, hemstitched, at $1.00 pair.
One with 3-inch hem and 2-inch cluny insertion, 40 inches wide, 2 1/2 yds. long, at $1.65 pair.

We have many other good numbers ranging in price, 85c to $3.50 pair.

Rugs and Carpets

The enlarged Rug Department on the second floor is outdoing all previous records in rug and carpet selling. The beautiful display room in which we show them, the handsome designs and colors which we are showing and the specially low prices which we are making on all grades of rugs and carpets, all work in one harmonious whole to help you to select pleasing floor coverings at prices that we have never offered such goods at before.

We Are Offering An Unusual Bargain in Rugs

Tapestry Brussels Rugs at $6.95.
They come in floral and oriental patterns, size 9 x 12. An excellent rug for the money. There is no question but what these bargains will be snapped up at once.

We also offer about 25 rugs made up from our remnants of the best brussels and axminster carpets. These are all displayed for easy selection and are shown in all sizes. YOU CAN SAVE ALMOST HALF ON ANY RUG IN THE LOT. Prices, $5.00 to $25.00; sizes from 6 x 6 ft. to the largest room sizes.

We are now showing the largest assortments ever in our history.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THEY sank into my living room chairs as wearily as if they had each just completed a day's housecleaning. "And we've only shopped about two hours, and been to less than half a dozen stores," they said in wonderment at their weariness. "What on earth can be the matter with us?"

They are distinctly healthy young persons under ordinary conditions, so I also wondered until, after due rummaging for elusive halps, they gave their hats over to me, to be hung into the hall.

And then I wondered no longer. Both were mountains of straw. One mountain was surmounted by a flower garden, the other by an aviary. Each weighed at least two or three pounds, and they were both so large that I knew it must have taken perpetual balancing to keep them on straight, and concentrated attention to steering, to get them through the crowds.

With that weight on their heads and that care on their minds, why shouldn't they have been more tired than usual?

And speaking of hats, what about yours? Can that hat, by any chance, have anything to do with the fact that you got tired so easily lately? Isn't that a possibility worth considering?

Not long ago a certain minister saw a female notice about a young girl who tried to commit suicide by turning on the gas jet in her lodging house hall. A great many people besides that minister presumably also saw the notice, read it, passed on to the next item and thought no more about it.

But the minister saw, instead of just a news item, a human being who had been in such great trouble that she was even willing to go to—"The undiscovered country from whose bourne No traveler returns."

And he went to the hospital named in the news item to see if there was anything he could do.

He discovered that the girl had attempted to commit suicide to escape from a life of shame into which very cruel circumstances had led her.

He found her respectable friends. Today she is an honest and happy woman.

Almost every day we read in the paper of men and women who have found life so very undesirable that they have tried to leave it, but have failed in their attempts.

Would it be so very Quixotic to suggest that some of us might do as this man did—make it our business to see if there was not something we could do to make life endurable for some of these discouraged people?

I wonder.

"We have, but a few yards left. It may be gone tomorrow," said the salesman, as he gave the rose-colored silk a twist that made it look even more attractive than before.

Up to that moment I hadn't been sure I wanted it, but the instant I heard of its possible unavailability, my doubts flew, and in a trice the salesman's scissors were snipping through billows of rose.

Wonder if there isn't a hint in that for the lady whose suture hesitates inconveniently long before she takes the plunge?

There's nothing makes you sure you want a thing like being a bit uncertain about being able to get it.

Isn't a vague suggestion, a delicately conveyed suspicion of unavailability just as efficient in courtship as salesmanship?

MYSTERY SURROUNDING THE DEATH OF AMERICAN ARTIST STIRS TWO COUNTRIES.

Miss Estelle Reid, American Artist Studying in Italy. Whose Dead Body Was Found on the Shore of the Bay of Naples.

Naples, Italy.—Was Estelle Reid, the American artist, whose partially clad body was washed ashore last week, killed or did she commit suicide? If murdered, what was the motive? If she committed suicide, what was the motive? These questions have caused much anxiety here both among friends and government officials.

Miss Reid was stopping at the Hotel Costello. She was extremely independent and self-reliant. Her reserved, solitary nature caused people here to surmise that some sorrow oppressed her. She sought only the companionship of children and always had enough money to satisfy her needs.

The theory of suicide is held by many. But the utter absence of a motive, so far as known, makes this hard to believe. She was devoted to her art, had plenty of money and paid little attention to men.

New York, N. Y.—Mrs. Bertha Reid, Wells of Postskid, N. Y., a sister of Estelle Reid, when seen at No. 400 Riverside Drive, said: "I am positive my sister had no love affair. I was her confidante; she told me everything. Besides, there had been a love affair, why should she not have married? She was young and attractive and she had money. But she was in love with her art, not with any man. So with an artistic career before her why should she kill herself?"

"No, she was murdered. She seemed to have money and you know how cheap human life is held in some sections of Italy."

"And yet—very likely we shall never know. It is so far away, I can undertake no private investigations, and shall trust entirely to the government. But its influence should be sufficient, I am sure, to make the Italian government probe the mystery to the bottom."

CRIPPLED BODIES AND SERENE SOULS.

By MARY HENNELLY.

In body? You see your line, straight body as your right. It is part of your inheritance. That is true, but suppose an inscrutable fate had cut you off from your inheritance and given you this heritage of sorrow—how would you have taken the burden load upon you?

Would you have repined and grown away from all good because this great good had been denied you? Because you felt yourself a blot on the landscape would you become a moral blot as well?

You think you would. It is so easy to forget that a good, clean, straight soul is better than a straight body.

The body is so accustomed to look at the surface of people as well as things and to think that because the outside is fair or foul the soul must correspond. It is not true! The world is wrong in this as in many other things!

We close our eyes and, like little children playing a game, we follow our leader without a thought we can call our own.

Let us learn to think for ourselves and to feel for others. Try to imagine the darkness of lives crippled by crippled and distorted bodies and then help to lighten the gloom. Children should be taught to try to make the afflicted playmate forget life's handicap. This is a matter which calls for tact.

Sympathy which is too obvious is an insult under some circumstances. The fine, serene gentleness, and gentleness which treats a deformed person as perfectly normal, apparently seeing no difference between the distorted body and the straight one, wins an unyielding gratitude.

To be constantly an object of pity is to a sensitive nature unbearable. The constant burning desire of a crippled boy I know was to be treated like other children.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

THE MAKING OF A MAN.

"Dad, I'm married."

"Well, sir, you can now try your hand at making a living for your family."

Which is the reputed conversation between young Phyllander Knox and his father, the secretary of state, when the son had returned from an elopement with pretty Gertrude Boler.

And young Knox promptly accepted the challenge. He went to work the next day as an automobile salesman.

Query? Will young Knox make a man of himself as did Cornelius Vanderbilt when he was discovered for marrying Miss Grace Wilson?

The story is one of the most interesting and typical of our American life.

Cornelius was the oldest living son of the senior Cornelius Vanderbilt and destined after the family tradition to receive the bulk of the family fortune.

But he fell in love with the wrong girl.

So strong was the parental anger that in the interval between father and son the former fell in an apoplectic fit, a second attack of which caused his death three years later.

A month after the interview the marriage took place, and young Cornelius went to work in the New York Central shops.

He studied especially the problem of locomotive construction. His income was limited for a person of his antecedents, but his home was a happy one, and he was doing a man's work in the world.

Then his father died.

The father's will left Alfred Vanderbilt forty-eight millions and out Cornelius off with one million. Alfred lived in an atmosphere of scandal, and about every time a new story came out on Alfred it was announced that Cornelius had taken out a patent on a new invention.

Out of the thirty patents taken out by Cornelius one—a locomotive fire box—had so much merit that it was adopted by all the leading railroads, and the royalties, together with his other inventions, have made him a fortune that is now larger than his brother's.

The test proved the stuff of which he was made.

Will young Mr. Knox make a man of himself after the Cornelius Vanderbilt way?

Like Vanderbilt, he married against his parents' wishes. Like Vanderbilt, he has declared he will win a position in the world.

Let us hope so. He is independent, and independence puts real courage in the blood. He will meet opposition, and opposition overcomes puts fiber and forcefulness into character.

TAFT CANCELS ANOTHER JAUNT.

President Will Not Speak at Atlantic City as Scheduled.

Washington, May 9.—President Taft cancelled another engagement to go out of Washington and intends to sit hard on the job until congress has passed some of the legislation he thinks the Republican party is pledged to enact. The president will not go to Atlantic City May 21 and 22 to speak before the labor department of the Presbyterian church general assembly.

The Optimist's Corner Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. HUTLER, A. M., M. D.

Microbes feed on filth in or out of the body. Dead and disintegrating organic matter in the human body, a flask or culture tube, present a suitable environment for germs, and they appear as the natural agents of chemical resolution.

Germs are simply scavengers. They are single-celled organisms, living by absorption. They separate mineral salts from the volatile gaseous elements with which they are combined, feeding upon the latter.

Germs may act as the medium of infections, though not in themselves pathogenic, just as flies do. It is estimated that much of the typhoid of the east is due to the virus transmitted by flies. So germs ejected into an animal carry enough dead matter to cause violent septicaemia.

If a man sustains a lacerated wound, with extensive destruction of tissues, germs soon appear in the discharge. We do not pretend that these germs caused the wound. What is true of a lesion located on the exterior of the body is equally applicable to the interior. If we could clean, drain and apply treatment as directly in one case as the other, we should get as prompt and effective results.

GREAT THIEF CATCHER DEAD.

Inspector Byrnes of New York Passes Away at the Age of Sixty-Six.

New York, May 9.—Thomas F. Byrnes, who as head of the New York detective department became known all over the civilized world as one of the greatest thief catchers the country ever produced, died at the age of 66 from chronic indigestion and gastritis.

The end was not unexpected. Death came while Inspector Byrnes was surrounded by members of his family. Mr. Byrnes had been ill for some time. Two months ago he was reported as dying. He rallied, however, and was able to leave his sick bed. Two weeks ago, however, there came a relapse, and he was put to bed again.

PHRENOLOGY SHOWS THEIR CHARACTERS

Dr. A. P. Burrus Writes of the Character and Temperament of King George and His Queen.

Dr. A. P. Burrus has written for the Gazette a phrenological sketch of the new King of England, George the fifth and his Queen, Mary. It is probably the first phrenological sketch ever prepared for the public on the monarch and his wife.

All Europe, and all nations are deeply interested in the reign of the new King, and wondering what his policy will be.

The phrenology of the King and the new Queen are so strongly marked that we can tell in advance what their policy will be. Phrenology shows a very even, uniform development, with the highest development of the organs of intellect, and a very high development of the organs of emotion, and a very high development of the organs of the will.

England's New King.

He takes more after his mother than father. His father had 3 organs very large which are only full in a wide difference. He has large acquisitiveness, with good self-reliance and caution, and an individuality and fullness in the upper part of the head. He will practice saving economy in every department in both public and private affairs. He will not have as many courses at table as his father; but will rather prefer plain, simple diet, will show strong drink, wine and women. He will not be vain or take much pains to make a show but prefer plain substantial dress and care but little for fashion, always preferring that which is durable. He will not place a very high estimate on jewelry and diamonds, but will seek of expenses will give his heart. He has rather large self-esteem on firmness, which will make him self-reliant in all things. His constructiveness at wide corners of forehead is large, giving him great mechanical skill. He is full at top of the nose, giving a good mechanical eye. His locality over the internal corner of the eye is large, giving the love of travel and memory of places so that he will never get lost in city or far off. His intellectual organs are all large, with a great memory of his history. His language is good. He is fluent and thoughtful. The upper region of forehead is full and prominent, giving a deep and profound thought. The destructive is full, but he will be safe to say that the chief aim of his reign will be to increase the wealth and prosperity of his kingdom.

New Queen of England.

Phrenology of the New Queen. Her phrenological organs are so strongly marked that her character can be definitely determined with accuracy. She appears to be remarkably well formed, both physically and mentally. Her temperament is bilious and nervous, giving great energy and activity. Her features are well formed and she is a good mate for the King. The first thing that attracts our attention is the prominence and fullness over the opening of the ear showing that portion of grey matter that receives the roots of the pneumogastric nerve is large, giving great tenacity of life. Indicating that she belongs to a long lived family, and is positively proof against tuberculosis under all circumstances. She will nurse the consumptive, and will be of great service to the afflicted. Those who have such a brain danger. Those who have such a brain danger. Those who have such a brain danger.

WANT CHURCHES TO ADVERTISE

Each One Ought to Have Good Man for That Purpose, Declares Dr. Rufus A. White

The churches ought to advertise. Each one of them ought to have a good man for that purpose. Dr. Rufus A. White, pastor of People's Church, at a special luncheon of the Chicago Advertising association yesterday, declared that the churches ought to advertise. He said that the churches ought to have a good man for that purpose. He said that the churches ought to have a good man for that purpose. He said that the churches ought to have a good man for that purpose.

No man can be at his best With a poor digestion.

If you have lost appetite

And can't digest what you eat,

Drop the usual heavy meats,

And gravies, puddings and pies,

And live for a time

Principally on Grape-Nuts and cream.

If you have never tried it,

There's a treat in store for you.

Grape-Nuts can be easily digested

By the weakest stomach

And soon strengthen

The digestive organs,

So that a variety of food

Can be eaten with comfort.

Be sensible.

Don't put off the test.

GARDENERS PLANTING FLOWERS AND TREES

Many Are Somewhat Discouraged by the Set Back From the Frosts of April

With the new moon scheduled to arrive today, should the wind be in the south, we are told by old gardeners and those folk who are weather-wise, that the coming month will be dry and warm. If this be true the gardeners of Janesville who have been discouraged by the continued cold will rejoice. Many already planted early this spring were badly injured by the frost. They appeared dead for the most part, but now the second, or third, or fourth, or fifth, or sixth, or seventh, or eighth, or ninth, or tenth, or eleventh, or twelfth, or thirteenth, or fourteenth, or and the "Nightie," "The Same Old Story," "California," and "The Days of '49" are the biggest kind of a success and receive encore after encore.

The latest Slinger success to come Thursday, May 12, at Myers Theatre, is "The Flirting Princess," by Adams Hough and Howard, authors of many of the La Salle and Princess Theatre musical shows. "The Flirting Princess" is styled as a "suspense farce" by the authors. Anything within the range of a three act piece, with a little of everything in it, is called almost any other name nowadays, but to him who wants to see a "show," a musical comedy is just as sweet. "The Flirting Princess" is a disguised American girl, with just enough of an adventurous spirit to enjoy the flirtations of her would-be wooer, while she is seeking for the man she would care to kiss for the second time. Her experiences prove the first kiss is disastrous to any further enchantment. She surrounds herself with an atmosphere of mystery and finds enjoyable recreation among the guests at the Hotel Veronique, where the authors see fit to let everything happen. Several things do happen, and all between six o'clock on a summer's evening and the wee small hours of the same night. The time allotted proves sufficient to bring forth a number of clever musical selections and it gives an all star cast, including John W. Ransome, Vera Michelona, Adele Rowland, Harry Plier, Jos. C. Smith, Dick Lee, E. Knox Wilson, Lydia Dickson, Billy Robinson and others, an opportunity of presenting the big hit at the La Salle Theatre, Chicago, of the past season. One of the big features of the show is the presentation of the Vampire and Apache dances by Jos. C. Smith, the producer of the same, with Adele Rowland and Vera Michelona assisting him presenting the sensational dance hits of the season. The Three Dozen American Beauties are the prize winning show girls of the season—which the critics raved over on the beginning of last season. Another feature of the record breaking La Salle Theatre show is the new feature, Barocut, Chorus—wherein these ten girls, who so carefully see that each little toe shines as a diamond under the light, dance and play several selections on the accordion with Knox Wilson. Last, but not least, in this very important engagement of "The Flirting Princess," at the Myers Theatre, Thursday, May 12, is the whiteable inside Joe Hew and has provided for the same. A few of the very good ones that will be on the lips of the patrons of "The Flirting Princess" are "My Jack O' Lantern," "The Loves My Baby Eyes," "Oh, These Men," "The Golden Star," "The Love of the Golden Summer," "He Been Kissed in San Francisco," "The Song of the Butterfly," and others. Mr. Singer is sending the entire production exactly as presented for the past season at the La Salle Theatre, Chicago, and with the same all star cast.

Sent sale for The Flirting Princess will open Tuesday, May 10.

The British have had heaps of trouble in Siam to make the natives understand that the world is round, instead of flat. Indeed, the native teachers keep on teaching the children that it is flat, and when argued with they reply: "If it isn't flat, why do the mountains stand up as they do, instead of rolling downhill?"

15 TO KILLED, 50 MURT IN BLAST.

Baseball Spectators Viewing Fire in Dynamite Factory Are Victims.

Ottawa, P. Q., May 9.—Fifteen persons were killed and 50 were injured by an explosion which wrecked the plant of the General Explosives company of Canada, four miles from Ottawa. The country for miles around was laid waste and many small dwellings in the city of Hull, on the side nearest the scene of the explosion, were flattened to the ground.

Just as a baseball game was nearing its end a fire was seen in one of the small buildings of the powder plant. The crowd deserted the game and began to swarm up the hill to get a better view of the blaze. Warnings of the danger came to the onlookers in two minor explosions soon after the fire got well under way.

Then the main magazine exploded. There were two stunning detonations. Everything within a radius of a mile and a half was torn and shattered.

The scene where the crowd from the ball field stood resembled a battlefield with mangled forms strewn on the ground.

At Hull forty small frame dwellings were shattered, and many injured persons were imprisoned in the wreckage.

TAKE BODIES FROM PALOS MINES

Rescue Work Is Hindered Because of Odor of Burning Flesh.

Palos, Ala., May 9.—Twenty-nine bodies have been brought out of slope No. 8, the scene of last Thursday's disaster.

Most of the bodies so far recovered are those of negroes. The odor of seared and drying flesh of men and mules is overpowering and the rescuers realize it will be necessary to clear the slope of dead bodies as rapidly as possible in order to facilitate the removal of the other victims.

Shackleton at Chicago Ball Game

Chicago, May 9.—Lieut. Sir Ernest H. Shackleton of the British navy, who holds the record for "farthest south" arrived in Chicago yesterday, accompanied by Lady Shackleton, and was the guest at a luncheon, dinner and reception. This afternoon the visitors were taken to see the Chicago-New York ball game and tonight Lieutenant Shackleton will deliver his lecture on his antarctic travels. At that time he will be presented with the Helen of Troy gold medal of the Geographic society of Chicago.

Your Friend's Faults.
There is a quaint old saying that every one carries two wallets—one behind and one before—and both are full of faults; the first of our own faults; the second of the faults of our neighbor. Which, being translated, means that most of us find it easier to pick flaws in our friends than in ourselves.

There are in this world two kinds of natures—those that have wings and those that have feet—the winged and the walking spirits. The winged are the logicans; the winged are instinctive and poetic.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

Teacher Should Rank High.
If education is to do what we hope for our children, it is imperative that the best and most gifted men and women should be attracted into the ranks of teachers and that they should be regarded as filling one of the most highly honored positions in the land.

"Taper," whether of rags or of wood pulp, still takes its name from the papyrus. "A 'book' is the beech, the wooden rod on which our forefathers cut their rustic letters. And a 'pen,' all is still by derivation "pencililus," a little tall, having been originally the name of the Roman painter's brush.

In a word, we are doing a amount of work. In 50 years, the labor-saving devices and other things we do 200 years of work, measure the old standard. We have to fast and in this we find the living high, according to old-urth.
